Testing Intelligence

Today, the human race is still proto-linguistic; still not doing its biologically defined job. Testing intelligence means putting a mind into a situation which will help fan the spark of intelligence to see how well we can make it burn. Any sane person would whole-heartedly want to raise themselves out of the mud and mire of obscure thought and pointless behavior, a waste of not only their own life, but the lives of those around them. This thought really does not occur to idiots.

Problem solving is the key, but it is not enough. One has to know what it means to be intelligent; what is the biologically defined job of a mind? Have you ever asked yourself that question and do you even care? When you care for something, that care becomes an expressed staple in your life.

A mind is one of the life support systems of your body. In metaphor, the mind is the salvation, the savior, of man and the planet whole. A mind, when functional, is the most powerful life support system possible; it is designed to predict the results of any and every thing in order to choose that path which will lead to an environment which is what can be called beautiful and secure. Most do not believe that this is possible because they see their own inept and stupid behavior as the default condition of man.

Being the most powerful life support system possible, a mind takes, for any species, the longest to evolve; to get to the top, you have to work hard.

A mind is a symbolic information processor, or one can say a virtual reality processor; you can say we model reality in our mind in order to predict the most favorable outcome of any particular behavior. We do this by a simple, factual, method, binary. Binary today is taught with the words of an idiot. Binary is the definition of any thing at all. It is the fact that everything is composed of relative differences constrained by limits, a container and the contained; a simple stop, go, stop; or nouns and verbs. Today, it is taught that there are several parts of speech, thus of how to use words, when by physical fact, there are only two, a binary couple, or in the metaphor of the Bible, a Conjugate Binary Pair. You see its power all around you, it is how a computer functions. A computer should tell you that all of information processing is binary, a simple gated relative difference.

This fact that every thing is defined as a binary, limits and relative differences in those limits, is what Language is. Language is Universal and Intelligible which means you have to have the intelligence not only to see it, but to take advantage of its power. Nobody speaks Language, we are language, and every thing living and dead is language, this simple binary.

Grammar is Particular and Perceptible. Through intelligence a functional mind converts the binary of Language into grammar. As a binary, by recursion language produces exactly four, and only four, categories of grammar. When a mind is too dysfunctional, they cannot even follow the reasoning. A binary is also called a unit, or 1. Every possible grammar affords the mind the power of Language, complete induction and deduction; to record the past, present, and predict the future. Language is the authority of a sapient species and that authority is expressed in grammar systems. These grammar systems are Law. We are not a respecter of persons; we function by the light of Language and can produce our results step by step, in accordance with Law, or well-defined grammar systems.

Therefore, if your mind really desires to wake up, to do its job, it has to first have an innate ability afforded to it by evolution, itself. Nobody can change the givens, what we seek to do is take advantage of them. My work in grammar is aimed at testing intelligence. You apply it to yourself. I show you the power of grammar with feats of mental ability called impossible. I do it several times in my work; but make no mistake, I just show you the power of Language through grammar, what it is, why it is, and how to exercise your own intelligence, if you have any at all. That work is called Universal Language. It is a simple pdf file which contains the work of those who have been aiding mankind to kindle the flame of intelligence. The Bible, the main function of which has been guided evolution; The Dialogues of Plato, a grammar teacher; The Elements of Euclid, and my own very extensive work using a pure, a provable, hands on analog grammar system, Geometry. You learn by your own hand in geometry all about grammar and it exercises every power of your mind. Like every other grammar, geometry today is mythologized by idiots. If you are an idiot, you will not comprehend the work to the point you will ignore it. When a mind is dead, it does not even desire to improve. When it is alive, that life will be demonstrated by very provable results in one's own behavior.

If you are an idiot, you want someone to tell you what to do. If you are sapient, you learn how to do it for yourself. Reading is approached commensurate with your mental ability. If you read to acquire information on how people use their mind, what they imagine, and what they conclude, to learn standards of thought, you just might be intelligent. If you read for play, or mental masturbation, you are already dead. You read to take advantage of the past from those who have gone before you. You read to learn your own work.

What you want is determined by evolution. How to learn to be what you should be, is by finding those teachers who provably teach you what you are, why you are, and how to do your own work.

Relation to self is inadmissible; this Law of Identity can be repeated by fools, yet they do not comprehend it. It means that there is no one else except yourself who can save you. A mind is a life support system of your body; it is for the salvation of your soul, your life. Anyone teaching salvation, would teach you factually what you are, why you are, and how to do your own work; Nobody can live your life for you.
